Question of Publication Of Teachers Salaries Discussed at Meeting

The Pioneer Valley regional school committee met last Thursday evening for a long and complicated session, meeting at the Center school. At the beginning of the meeting two concerns demonstrated floor cleaning equipment suitable for use at the new school building and further equipment will be demonstrated this week.

Mr. Turner, superintendent, reported that the two classroom wings, the administrative wing, the lobby and the cafeteria area would be ready for use at the opening of school on Monday, Sept. 16. By vote of the committee Mrs. Dorothy Streeter was hired as school nurse and the matter of school doctor was postponed until the next meeting which was held last evening.

Alvin F. Oickle, county editor of the Recorder Gazette was present to discuss with the committee its reluctance to have printed the list of teachers' salaries. Many interesting points were brought out but no satisfactory agreement was reached. There will be further study of the problem.

The teachers' salaries have been published for the past several years and Committee Chairman Wendell Streeter stated that the figures were public as are other school committee records and that no effort would be made to withhold them but it seemed the consensus that these figures should not be published in the newspapers especially at the opening of school.

Supt. F. Sumner Turner stated that he felt such publication of teachers' salaries an insult to the teaching profession and should not be done at any time. Other members of the committee expressed similar views. Present at the meeting were Alvin F. Oickle, county editor, John Senior, reporter, and Mrs. Esther Leonard, correspondent, all of the Recorder Gazette, and Mrs. Dorothy L. Miller representing this paper.

Reports were heard from the clerk of the works, Fred H. Eastman, and from the treasurer of the committee.

Albert H. Stoddard, Jr., of Warwick was authorized to purchase a flagpole for the school.

Dickinson Library Notes

Mrs. Florence Phelps, Librarian

This week we celebrate the signing of the "Constitution of the United States" on Sept. 17, 1787. Next to the signing of the "Declaration of Independence" in 1776, this was one of the most momentous events in our history.

Members of the D.A.R. have loaned to the library copies of the three Documents of Freedom; the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States and the Bill of Rights, which are displayed on our bulletin board in the reading room.

Included in the exhibit are books on the subject, a magazine containing a picture of the signing of the Document, and a picture showing both documents as they are preserved in the Congressional library.

This being Civil Defense week also, you will find several pamphlets in a display case in the reading room, sent to the library by the Federal Civil Defense administration, Battle Creek, Mich., for distribution. Take these and read them carefully. They contain vital information for every citizen in our United States.

Our main current exhibit, however, has been put on by Douglas Jones of East Northfield. Mr. Jones is art instructor at the Northfield School for Girls and has exhibited his paintings at the WHAI art galleries. He has classes in "ceramics" and displayed their work at the art and flower show in August. His present exhibit contains about 25 pieces of pottery and five photographs of Mr. Jones in his workshop, showing the techniques employed in making "pottery." Be sure to see them when you visit the library.

There is quite a different set-up for the school children of the town in using the facilities of our library, this year. The first six grades from the Center and old high school building will be able to use our books regularly, if desired.

For the pupils at the new Pioneer Valley regional school, there is a different problem. At the present time there is no indication that our books will be available during the school session. Children living within walking distance or who have transportation will be able to take books as usual after school.

The suggestion has been made that collections of books on different subjects could be deposited at the new school library and circulated to the students through the school librarian. These collections could be made on an "inter-library loan" basis. That is, for a stated period of time.

Next week I will tell you of some recent gifts to our library.

Afternoon Alliance Reports on Fair

The Afternoon Alliance of the Unitarian church met Thursday afternoon of last week for the first fall meeting with Mrs. Oler Doolittle, president, presiding.

He told of the work being done at Virginia Beach and spoke of the possibilities of extra sensory perception and the work of the American Society for Psychical Research. All present were most interested in his talk.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union will hold its first fall meeting on Monday, Sept. 30, at the home of the president, Mrs. Arthur Green, Main St. There is important business to be considered so a good attendance is desired.

D. L. Moody in Print

Three times in the past week the name of D. L. Moody has appeared in print. First there appeared an article in the New York Times about the best-known American evangelists. Three days later Tom Wolfe wrote one of the most authentic biographical sketches of D. L. Moody that has ever appeared, for the Springfield Union. Mr. Wolfe is a graduate of William and Mary college, and got his doctor's degree at Yale in 1956. Mr. Wolfe has never been north of Greenfield in this part of New England and yet has written an outstanding article on the man born in East Northfield. The third appearance of the Moody name in print came with the announcement of The New Dictionary of Thoughts, a "giant 800-page volume of over 20,000 quotations by master minds of the world—the words and wisdom of 1,800 great men and women, alphabetically arranged under 1000 topics. Under a list with the title, "A Few of the 1,800 Famous People Whose Great Thoughts Are Inclined," we find Balzac, Chaucer, Dickens, Einstein and D. L. Moody. The word "Cross-section" would be an understatement for this array of names.

Bears and More Bears

No sooner had the August letter to servicemen gone forth to all corners of the world with a report on bears in this county than a New York newspaper ran an article on the bear population of New York state, 3000-4000 being the number of wild bears. There they are caught, anesthetized, studied tagged and let loose far from people and towns. Next came the story of Mrs. Paul D. Moody's grandson-in-law. He walked up to the blueberry pasture behind his home on Jockey Hill in Cuttingsville, Vt., just down to watch a pheasant on a low limb rise and fly away. Then, hearing a sound in the ferns below the limb, he saw a bear waking from a long summer's nap. Mr. and Mrs. True, on vacation in Maine, saw a bear in its native habitat.

Another Member for the 90-100 Club

James A. Putnam, father of Mrs. Harold Bigelow, celebrated his 90th birthday Sunday at the home of his daughter and her husband. He was born in Winchester Sept. 14, 1867.

Cleanliness Stressed In Milk Handling

While experience has shown the milking machine to be a great time saver in the milking operation, it has also shown that the dairyman's mechanical handyman can be the cause of excessive bacteria counts in milk.

It is possible to produce milk of very low bacterial count, however, if the milking unit is properly cleaned and sanitized, says Prof. David A. Evans, department of dairy and animal science at the University of Massachusetts.

The success of washing milking machines depends upon the promptness with which washing is done after each milking and the thoroughness of removal of all soil deposits. In general the following procedure will be satisfactory for most makes of machines: Pre-rinse each machine immediately after milking by drawing a pailful of clean, lukewarm water into the milker pail.

Prepare a washing solution in the wash tank, following manufacturer's directions for the amount of cleaning agent to use to a given volume of water.

Draw one pailful of this washing solution through each unit in the same manner as was used for the pre-rinse. Remove the pulsator and shake pail to accomplish washing on the inside.

Place the flush detergent solution in the wash tank, dismantle unit and brush all parts thoroughly in the solution.

Immediately after washing, rinse all parts in clean, hot water to remove all washing solution.

And finally, sanitize the unit before use by drawing about three gallons of chlorine sanitizing solution through it.

It is vitally important to clean stanchion hoses regularly also, Evans says. Sanitation is important to the dairyman because high bacteria counts make poor quality milk.

DAR Honors State Regent

The fall quarterly meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution was held Monday afternoon in the beautiful drawing room of the Chateau. Mrs. Alfred N. Graham of Leicester, state regent, was guest of honor and spoke briefly concerning the work of the state organization. Mrs. Herman E. Weston of Bellows Falls, state regent for Vermont, also brought greetings from her state. There were chapter regents and guests from Northampton, Brattleboro, Vt., Greenfield, Amherst, Springfield, Easthampton, Keene, N. H., and Bellows Falls, Vt. The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Kathleen Blaney of Methuen who spoke on "Our American Heritage." She was a most charming speaker and had a wonderful message of the value and promise of our heritage from the past. She also had on display a fascinating collection of antique articles of beauty and interest brought to our culture from our origin countries. Some of these were Wedgewood, silver and plates from England, paisley shawl, Scotland; Balleek ware, Ireland; embroidery, China; metallic embroidery, Turkey; lace and lustre, France; Bohemian ruby glass; a Dresden plate, Meissen onion pattern china, Russian shawl and beautiful shawls from Spain, Britannia ware and milk glass, sandwich glass lamp and a candle lantern, among other things made by our own early American ancestors. Mrs. Robert L. Wood, regent, presided at the meeting and Mrs. Ross L. Spencer, past regent, introduced the guest and speaker. There were 42 present to enjoy the fine meeting. The rooms were beautiful with bouquets of fall flowers and coffee was served by the Northfield hotel.

The D.A.R. chapter holds three meetings a year. The next meeting will be held at the home of the regent, Mrs. Robert L. Wood, on Dec. 8 when Mrs. Wood will speak on "Things."

A luncheon meeting is scheduled for March 17 when Mrs. James Bissland will speak on "The Shakers."

The annual inspection of the Northfield Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, will be held Wednesday, Oct. 2. A rehearsal for officers will be held Monday evening, Sept. 30, and all chapter property must be at the hall at that time.

The ladies of the Bernardston Baptist church will have a food sale at the Bernardston town hall Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

These bulbs come from Ipswich and the sale is a money raising project of the club. Bulbs will be on sale to members Monday evening and thereafter at the home of Mrs. Walter Bailey in East Northfield.

Very attractive printed programs have been distributed to the members of the Northfield Garden club by the members of the program committee: Mrs. Walter Bailey chairman, Mrs. Samuel R. Bishop, Miss Bessie Moore, Mrs. George W. Carr, Mrs. Mildred Nims and Paul D. Shores.

Civic Council Urges Action

The meeting of the civic council Wednesday evening was a most satisfactory one. There was a good attendance — between 60-70 — and all present were of the opinion that something should be done right away to remedy the situation here on our Main street that is dangerous for our citizens and others passing through, also. As efforts in the past have been fruitless the opinion seemed to be that something must and will be done now.

Edward S. Hurley, president of the council, presided. Chairman Wallace Stange of the selectmen gave a report of actions taken in the past few years and at the present time. He stated that Commissioner of Public Works Anthony DiNatale is concerned over the situation and on Tuesday a 12-hour traffic count was made and another will be made Friday, tomorrow, from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Many suggestions were made by those citizens present in regard to proper and possible solutions and a special town meeting will be planned for the near future after a report has been received from the department of public works, stating their plans and recommendations.

Chairman Stange also reviewed recommendations made by the Western Massachusetts Electric Co., concerning improved lighting of the entire Main street from Luckey Clapp road to Wanamaker road. Needs seem to be: improved lighting, erection of speed signs, traffic lights and a code of traffic regulations adopted by the town.

Over 300 citizens have already signed the petition which will be sent to the commissioner of public works asking for its immediate action.

Other problems were brought up and discussed by those present at this forum meeting. Complaints were made by several from various parts of the town concerning "hot rod" drivers who use our Main street and intersections as

Kiddies' Day Is Saturday

Saturday, Sept. 28, is Kiddies' Day, sponsored by the Kiwanis club, a new project for the local club.

Children will assemble for the parade at 10 o'clock Saturday morning at the town hall and it will start at 10:30 with Edward and Thomas Hurley as marshals. The Pioneer Valley regional school band and the Northfield fire department will take part. These prizes are on display in the window of the F. M. Dunnell office next to Avery's store and the judges are to be Mrs. William Person, Mrs. Raymond Parenteau and Mrs. Gilbert Stacy.

At the breaking up of the parade on the Center school grounds all will enjoy competitive games and pony rides.

Ferdinand Caron is chairman in charge of the games, Julian Barber in charge of prizes and Charles Repeta in charge of the free lunch to be served to the children. Lunch will be sold to others and parents are welcome at the outing.

The death by accident of Mrs. Nellie O. Bigelow on last Friday evening has moved Northfield's citizens to take an active stand concerning the installation of some suitable traffic safety devices at this intersection of routes 10 and 63 with Warwick avenue and Parker avenue right in the center and main business district of the town.

The following notice and petition were read in the local churches on Sunday:

"The conditions largely responsible for the tragic fatal accident on Main street last Friday evening will be discussed at a meeting of the Northfield civic council at 7:45 next Wednesday evening in the town hall. This is a public meeting and all members of the community are urged to attend and sign the following petition which will be presented at that time. Those unable to attend the full meeting will be able to sign the petition at any time between 8 and 11 p.m.

"To the Commissioner of the Department of Public Works for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts:

"Whereas three citizens of our town of Northfield have been killed in traffic accidents during the past seven years, the latest one on the 20th of this current month, at or near the dangerous intersection of our Main street (Routes 10 and 63) with Warwick and Parker avenues, and

"Whereas the repeated efforts of our town authorities to secure the installation of suitable traffic safety devices at this intersection have produced no action by your department,

"We, the undersigned citizens of this community, therefore request that the department of public works take immediate steps to relieve the present dangerous condition which constitutes a constant threat to the lives and welfare of our citizens."

This petition was at the local I.G.A. store on Tuesday and Wednesday and at the meeting of the civic council on Wednesday evening and has already several hundred signatures.

On Friday evening Mrs. Bigelow was crossing the street with groceries when she was struck by a car going north operated by Levi S. Buzzell of Lenox with Miss Virginia A. Healey, also of Lenox, as a passenger. Dr. Ansel B. True was called and Medical Examiner Howard E. Kemp of Shelburne said a fractured skull caused death.

This was the third fatal accident in the past eight years. In all three cases elderly women wearing dark clothing and at dusk. Miss Elizabeth Dale, 75, died on Dec. 31, 1949, of injuries received when struck by a car on Dec. 28, and Mrs. Kate Alexander, 78, was killed instantly on the evening of Dec. 6, 1950.

To go back farther than that Mrs. Forest Esterbrook many years ago while crossing to the Grange hall and Albert Mead while crossing nearly opposite the St. Patrick's church died of injuries received when struck by passing cars.

Several requests have been made in the past to the department of public works for some action concerning traffic safety measures for this area of the town but nothing has been done.

However since the accident beginning this week a highway traffic count and survey is being taken under orders of the commissioner of public works Anthony DiNatale.

Never Look a Fact in the Face

Never, never look an unpleasant fact in the face.

The highway accident record in Massachusetts is getting steadily worse. More people injured means more insurance claims, and higher wages and medical costs mean larger claims. Yet when the bill is rendered for all this by the insurance companies, we hear no cry for better safety practices, but just what so-and-so's the insurance companies are. The bill is refused.

The insurance companies said the other day they would have to increase compulsory automobile rates some 25% next year. At once we had the automatic voice of Senator Canavan crying fraud, and pleas by others for a new state statistical bureau to check the insurance data.

Now maybe the insurance companies aren't run with total efficiency and maybe they paint as dark a picture as the facts permit. But to accuse them of any major deception is simply absurd; they couldn't get away with it. Hunting for statistical flaws is just failing to face facts.

The insurance companies' John O'Connor sent us some statistics the other day, and among them we stumbled on the astounding statement that other New England states have less than half the claim frequency of Massachusetts. For every 100 cars on the road in this state last year, 7.2 cars caused accidents resulting in claims for bodily injury. In other words, about one car out of 14 caused bodily injury.

This is a ghastly record and we got hold of the Massachusetts safety council to see if the accident figures lent any credence to the companies' figuring. They do.

They showed that while deaths have remained pretty constant in Massachusetts around the 530 level per year, non-fatal injuries have shot up appallingly 64,561 in 1953, 76,614 in 1954, 81,919 in 1955 and 101,000 in 1956. This is far faster than the increase in numbers of cars. While cars were increasing in numbers at a 5% annual rate in 1956, injuries were increasing at a rate of 23%.

Not only that, but the deaths and injuries reported by the council for 1956 represent about one for every 14 cars, corresponding closely to insurance company claim figures.

Certainly, if there is any finagling of insurance company figures the amount of it is insignificant.

Not only are the number of claims increasing rapidly, but the cost of settlement of the average claim is rising rapidly too, as the cost of medical care and the compensation for lost wages goes up. This, too, is an unpleasant fact that will continue to be a fact however much we look in other directions.

What this all means is that we, the citizens, will get nowhere whipping the insurance companies when it is ourselves who must be whipped.

It is we who have made Massachusetts the top state of all 48 in the ratio of injuries to fatalities. It is we who have caused this staggering increase in injuries. It is we who stoutly refuse to adopt the rigorous methods necessary to reduce accidents. It is we who cannot bear to see bad drivers penalized by an insurance demerit plan. It is we who refuse to insist that the young drivers pay proportionately for the accidents they cause. It is we who are unwilling to support a fully adequate 24-hour, seven-day a week traffic enforcement program.

It is we who just can't bear to face an unpleasant fact.

Dickinson Library Notes

Mrs. Florence Phelps, Librarian

In observance of "Constitution Week" at the library last week, our flag was displayed each day.

Last week was also "Civil Defense week" and pamphlets on the subject, entitled "Rural family defense," "Your car and Civil defense, 4 wheels to survival," "Facts about the H Bomb," "Conelrad 640 or 1240" were in the display case for distribution. There are many of these left and I should be glad to have everyone avail himself of this free information.

Some of the recent gifts of books are: Mother West Wind "When" stories, and Longlegs, the heron, by Burgess; Rufous Red-tail by Helen Garrett, from Mrs. Edith Aldrich; Bands of America, by Schwartz; Historic Towns of New England, by Powell; Coaching Roads of Old New England, by Marlowe; Uncas and the Mohegan Pequot, by Peale; Liddell & Scott's Greek and English Lexicon; Life of John Quincy Adams, by W. H. Seward; Stratford-on-Avon by Sidney Lee; Popular Guide to Modern Legal Principles, by Marshal; Stories of famous operas by Guerber; Longfellow's complete poetical works; Home letters of General Sherman, from Mrs. Walter Hallam.

Mrs. E. M. Powell presented the library with a copy of the 1957 issue of the Northfield High School Review. Also from Mrs. Powell, Guizot's History of France and 40 recent numbers of the Illustrated London News.

For some reason magazines are not circulating as in former years in either department. Are people just not reading any more, or, are they buying the ones they wish to read?

We have a good list of magazines in the reading room. The following are given regularly by friends of the library and are loaned on the same basis as our books:

The Saturday Evening Post, Saturday Review of Literature, Newsweek, U. S. News and World Report, Outdoor Life, Flower Grower, Horticulture, Moody Monthly and The Advance, to name a few.

The library subscribes regularly to these magazines: The Ladies Home Journal, McCall's, The Atlantic, American Home, Good Housekeeping, National Geographic, Popular Mechanics, Popular Science, Reader's Digest, Vermont Life and The Northfield Press. We also have Consumer Reports issued monthly by Consumer Union and the Consumer reports 1957 buying guide issue.
